

Anticipatory Care Planning Programme

April 2022 Edition

#StartTheConversation

In partnership with Macmillan

At the end of March, we hosted our first event for all of our amazing ACP Champions. This was an opportunity to get together and share our aspirations for the programme, as well as hear about some of the challenges still to overcome. We were also lucky enough to have David Craig from the Clinical Effectiveness Team come along to inspire us with his introduction to Quality Improvement. We all have our thinking hats on now for what projects we might like to do in the future!

We currently have over 60 champions from a variety of professions and areas, however there is always space for more! If you would like to find out more about the programme and how to be involved visit our website.

Demystifying Death Week

Demystifying Death Week is taking place from 2nd - 6th May 2022, organised by our great friends at Good Life, Good Death, Good Grief.

This year we have put our thinking caps on to plan a whole host of events and activities to break the taboos around death, dying and bereavement. These will be for both the public and staff working across NHS GGC and will hopefully include sessions on Power of Attorney, the dying process and of course Anticipatory Care Planning!

Follow us on twitter to keep up to date with details of these events.

When it comes to Anticipatory Care Planning, everyone has a role to play! That is why we have developed some new training sessions to make sure we can get the right message out to right people.

Whether you are involved in starting the conversations and signposting people to further information, or having and recording full ACP conversations we have a session to fit! And of course we always love coming along to give teams a quick overview of our programme. Email us at ACPSupport@ggc.scot.nhs.uk to find out more about what we can offer and let's get a date in the diary!
